

1

Find a Specialist

It is highly recommended that appendix cancer and PMP patients seek out a specialist who deals with these conditions on a regular basis before commencing treatment.

Check out acpmp.org/find-a-specialist to find one near you.

2

Educate Yourself

Learn about appendix cancer and PMP, particularly about diagnosis, treatment and terminology. Check out videos from our educational events to learn more about these diseases and optimal treatment.

Go to acpmp.org/helpful-links to learn more.

3

Participate in the ACPMP Patient Registry

ACPMP's Patient Registry serves as a platform for patients around the world to share information about appendix cancer and PMP in order to build an international resource to be used by scientists in future research. Visit acpmpregistry.iamrare.org

4

Explore the Clinical Trial Database

Review ACPMP's list of active clinical trials and discuss with your physician. Ask your physician about genetic & molecular profiling of your tumor to guide treatment : acpmp.org/clinical-trials.

5

Receive Updates & Connect with Others

Follow ACPMP on social media and receive regular updates from ACPMP by joining our mailing list at acpmp.org/email-signup. Scan the QR code for all resources and ways to connect with other patients and caregivers.

The ACPMP Research Foundation is an IRS-designated 501(c)3 charitable organization (EIN # 26-2890160)